

Porongurup Wander Walk & Wine

Mary Roberts

We all met outside the Armadale Courthouse early on Saturday 4 March, looking forward to escaping the heat of Perth for some cooler and maybe even rainy weather down south. It'd been such a long dry summer I couldn't wait to smell the rain again. After some brief instructions from our trip leader Greg, we were underway at 8:00 am.

Our first stop was at Williams for coffee and morning tea and a stretch of the legs.

As we got back on the road Guy entertained us with stories of his work on Albany highway with Main Roads as an Environmental Officer. There is a bunch of road works on the highway at the moment so rather than getting frustrated (except Greg) we learnt what they were doing and why. My favourite story was of a bridge being replaced and the need to relocate a colony of bats living underneath it.

President's Report

David Peck

Thanks to Drifta Stockton for hosting our March meeting at their new Perth store. They had a surprising number of items that would be ideal for our Subarus. Thanks to Joy for sharing some notes about the meeting, you can read all about it on page 19.

There are a number of new trips being put on the website and I would encourage you to check it regularly.

The 4WD Association are holding the 4WD gathering at Whitegums (just out of York), this year on April 28th to 30th. There will be information sessions and a quiz night. See our website for details.

Track Care has a very ambitious year of projects coming up and has specifically asked Subaru club members to join in. I have some information on the dates and what is required if anyone is interested. Graham Weber, the chairman of Track Care, has agreed to being our Guest speaker at our May general meeting. He will give a bit of history of Track Care, past projects and future projects.

See you out there!

David

Day One - Saturday 4 March 2023

Next stop was Kojonup for a loo break and a quick shop at the local IGA for anything we had forgotten. Then it was back on the road to Mount Barker.

As we drove, we began to see glimpses of the Stirling Ranges amongst more stories from Guy about roadworks and environmental protection, scattered with some dad jokes.

After fuelling up at Mount Barker we headed to their famous bakery for scrummy lunch goodness. They have the most amazing selection of pies I have ever seen. I had lamb and rosemary with blue cheese.

The final stretch was the road to Porongurup and our campsite at the Porongurup Range Tourist Park. As we drove the winding road through bush and farmland, we could see the Stirling Ranges to our left. Then we could see the Porongurup Ranges to our right shrouded in rain clouds.

We arrived at the caravan park just in time to check in and were given a lovely open grassy spot to set up all together with views of the range. I tend to 'glamp' rather than camp, so as usual it took us a bit longer to be ready.

Once everyone was set up, we headed to Duke's Vineyard. There was a wine festival on in the region for the long weekend and Duke's had food, wine tasting and live music, so we headed over for the afternoon. We were surprised there was an entry fee but that didn't dampen our spirits as we soaked up the atmosphere.

Back at the camp we gathered near Greg and Vanessa's camp site to share food and swap stories into the evening. Guy and daughter Eliza headed off for a meal at the local Thai restaurant and returned with glowing reviews, then Guy presented a program of dad jokes until the rain set in and everyone turned in.

Day Two - Sunday 5 March

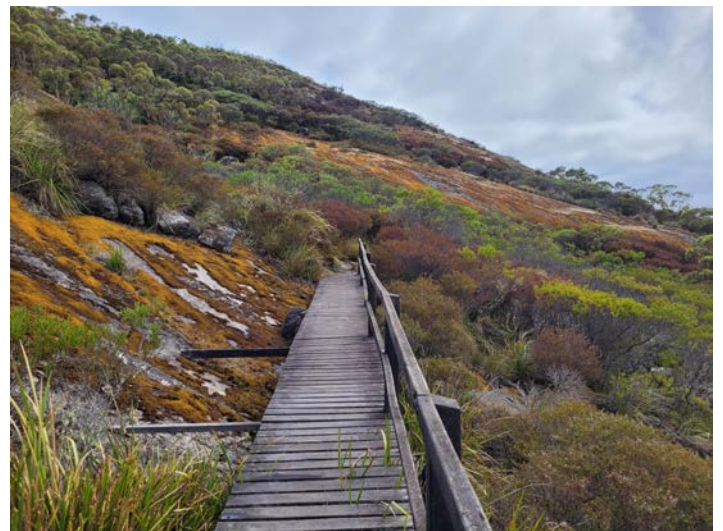

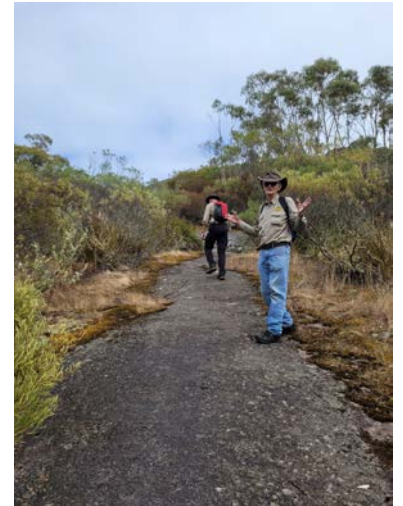

Tom Minto - Allison Gill - Vanessa Carn

The camp stirred into action after overnight drizzle and very mild temperatures. Various sub groups dispersed for assorted activities. The three of us headed off for the Devil's Slide walk trail. Greg and Vanessa were in their own vehicle and I in mine. Greg had heard this walk was supposedly a bit less challenging than Castle Rock which the others were going to. The peak of this walk is apparently the highest point in the Porongurups.

Start point at the Tree in the Rock carpark was only a 10-minute drive from camp. The early stages of the walk were consistently uphill on a dirt road for service vehicles. After about half an hour the path to the mountain peak deviated from the road and got distinctly steeper. The 'path' was not really a walkway but more moving from large rock to large rock via smaller rocks.

The overnight rain meant many of these rocks were damp and slippery which necessitated care and attention to handholds. All three of us had temporary loss of traction at times though none of us fell. At around the 45-minute mark we came across a pedestrian footbridge across a minor rift in the landscape. This was reassuring as the 'path' was so ill defined we sometimes wondered if we were just randomly scrambling up rocks.

We left Vanessa at the footbridge, possibly to act as a marker but primarily because she was concerned about a fall on the slippery rocks. Greg and I pushed on upwards to the point where his knees were crying "enough." We were close to the peak by this point but facing a very steep section of rock which was clearly damp and slippery with minimal handholds. Given the potential for injury it did not make sense for me to continue to the peak by myself, so we started our return trip.

We ran into two pairs of walkers making the climb as we were descending and spoke briefly with them. When we got back to the carpark I found a message on my windscreen from the Ranger. I had forgotten to display my Parks Pass so was fortunate to escape a fine.

The exercise had taken a little over two hours. On checking details later, we saw this walk is classed as a Grade 5 with an estimated return time of two and a quarter hours so we did ok without the need to resort to cannibalism or helicopter evacuations.

After a quick snack to replenish energy, we walked the few hundred metres to the Tree in the Rock. This was interesting to see and just as advertised.

Then it was off to the Porongorup Markets which were only a few hundred metres from our campsite. We linked up there with most of the group who had gone to Castle Rock.

Greg and Vanessa were continuing on to a distillery. I initially decided not to but then changed my mind. Somehow, I missed the distillery turnoff so after a solo scenic drive returned to camp for lunch and a quiet afternoon.

Meanwhile, Allison, Jane, Maria and Guy headed off to Castle Rock to walk and climb the sky walk. They started the walk about 8.30 and were finished within two hours.

After the walk they returned to the caravan park briefly then met the rest of the group at the Porongurup Markets.

After exploring the markets Greg and Vanessa led Allison and Jane, Guy and Eliza, and Maria to Woodlands Distillery for vodka and gin tasting and lunch.

My Denmark Detour - Sunday 5 March

Mary Roberts

Due to some annoying health related restrictions as a result of post COVID complications, I wasn't able to do any of the hiking or wine tasting planned for the trip. So, I was grateful that Greg had given us all a bit of freedom to 'choose our own adventure' for day two, so the girls (Jas, Tay and Miller - affectionately labelled the Triplets) and I had a late start to the rainy morning with a cooked breakfast then moseyed on down to the Porongurup Markets at the Tea Rooms just down the road.

There were so many beautiful stalls of locally made produce and crafts, but the best thing was the grape stomping competition. I had never seen grape stomping and Jas and Tay were keen to give it a go. The girls were competing with a pair of lads at squishing juice out of 5kg of grapes. So, they rolled up their jeans and climbed in their barrel and stomped as hard as they could for five minutes amongst cheers from the crowd. Both teams did a sterling job nearly filling their buckets and it was declared a draw. The girls' bucket was measured to go into the adult competition later that afternoon.

After some crafty purchases we had lunch at the cafe in front of the markets. The girls found a stash of board games, so we played 'Sorry' while waiting for our hot soup and Devonshire teas. Delicious!

The Triplets - Jas, Tay and Miller

After lunch the four of us headed to Denmark for our main event of the weekend. A couple of weeks earlier while planning what I could do instead of hiking I discovered some of my favourite bands were playing at a music festival called SummerSalt at Castelli Estate Winery. The bands were San Cisco, Boy and Bear and Birds of Tokyo.

I told my daughter Jas about my excitement of going to my first music festival at the age of 51. When she found out who was playing, she wanted to come too as did her friends. So, although it may have looked like I was chaperoning the girls, I would like to set the record straight that they were in fact welcome gatecrashers.

The hour drive to Denmark was via some beautiful winding tree lined roads, while we listened to a playlist Tay and Miller had made of the bands we were going to see. At the venue the stage was set on top of a hill with magnificent views of the winery and the region. The occasional sprinkle of rain in no way dampened our joy at seeing these amazing Australian bands live in such a beautiful setting. Our favourite was Freo based band San Cisco and we all bought merchandise to show our support. However, we were also blown away by the energy and stage presence of Birds of Tokyo.

On the way home the winding roads were a bit trickier in the dark. Not far from the camp site a roo hopped out in front of us. Thank goodness for the XV's emergency breaks! We stopped just in time with the poor kangaroo starring at us in as much shock as us. This just added to the memorable day.

While Mary and the Triplets were on their way to Denmark, Greg and Vanessa led the small convoy on a scenic drive through Porongurup from the distillery. The group agreed to stop in at Castle Rock Estate where the non-drivers enjoyed a lovely wine tasting. The host also explained the story of the Sleeping Lady silhouette created by a number of the peaks in the Stirling Ranges and kindly helped capture an image of the group.

Vanessa, Allison, Jane, Maria, Greg, Guy & Eliza with The Sleeping Lady on the horizon

Back at the caravan park some took a nap while Greg and Vanessa returned to the Porongurup Shop and Tea Rooms to witness the final heats and results of the grape stomping competition.

Greg and Vanessa enjoyed sampling more local wines while Guy and Eliza competed in the competition.

Unfortunately, no winners from the car club this year.

After freshening up a spontaneous Finska game was enjoyed back at camp, especially by the winner Tom. Next stop we headed across the paddock to Karribank for a lovely dinner. After dinner we headed back to Naomi and Graeme's cabin for a catch up before heading off to bed.

My Sunday Story

Graeme Sexton

Today we got an early morning wakeup call from Vanessa (8:30 am) giving us suggestions of what we could do. We decided to just call into Porongurup Markets as they were just down the road from our accommodation. As it was, the rest of the crew had the same idea. It was very interesting looking at what was there. We won a $5 voucher on a Pick-a-box for the tearoom there. We just walked around looking what other stalls there were and ended up buying some honey as it looked delicious. I think my favourite stall was the wine tasting, and I think Naomi agreed. Many others also chose to stomp the grapes in the wine barrel. Afterwards we headed off to the lovely tearooms for fresh scones and cream.

Later in the day we headed off to Castle Rock, one of the main reasons we wanted to do the Porongurup trip. The walk up took up 1 hour and 20 minutes. Naomi did very well with the walking sticks and I'm very proud that she was able to get there with her injuries. It was a lot easier walking down for her, but the view made the trek well worth it.

Finally, I headed back to town to see where we could have a beer, wine, or some snacks. As it turned out, the best place was the historic Karribank and the Karri on Bar right next door to where we were staying. We ordered woodfired pizzas and made the most of their lovely atmosphere. We ended the night by inviting our group back to our chalet to spend our last evening laughing and chatting together.

Heading Home - Monday 6 March

Mary Roberts & Allison Gill

The triplets and I took it slow in the morning with another cooked breakfast, then had some help packing up in the rain thanks to Graeme and Naomi.

First stop on a way home was to the nearby second-hand bookstore followed by morning tea in the tea rooms next door. The girls found some whistle lollipops that reminded them of their childhood, but discovered for the first time that there are tunes written inside the wrapper and numbers on the pop stick that match. So, with a couple of seconds of practice they played Frere Jacques together.

Miller then left to visit family in Albany and Jas, Tay, and I headed home to Perth. On the way home we noticed a sign to Wagin and the giant ram. Jas decided it was time to start collecting images of big things, so we decided to take a spontaneous detour to The Ram. We thought we might avoid some roadworks on the way but alas they were on the way to Wagin too!

Our last stop on the way home was just at the parking bay opposite North Bannister where we discovered someone has been using the parking sign for shooting practice with a bunch of bullet holes through it. Eeek. Who knew North Bannister was actually the Wild West.

Tuneful Triplet Trio

Thanks Greg for a lovely time away with a bunch of new memories!

After an early wake-up and pack up, Jane headed back to Dunsborough and was shortly followed by Allison, Maria and Tom. We stopped at Kojonup for a cuppa. Maria then parted ways with Tom and Allison who made a brief visit to the Kojonup gallery before also heading back to Perth on their own.

Thanks again Greg and Vanessa for your fun and thoughtful leadership.

APRIL 14 GENERAL MEETING GUEST SPEAKER

Solar Eclipses – Strange Shadows and Sunsets in the Daytime

Presented by Uta Bauer

<https://solarsystem.nasa.gov/eclipses/about-eclipses/types/>

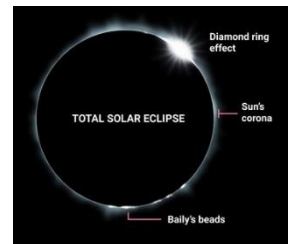

Exmouth Thursday April 20 sees the first total solar eclipse visible from Australia since Nov 2012. This one is actually a HYBRID and elements of a total and annular eclipse can be seen.

A total solar eclipse is when the Moon comes between the Sun and the Earth, creating a shadow on the Earth's surface which blocks out the Sun's light totally (if you are in the right place).

An annular solar eclipse is where the Moon's shadow doesn't totally block out the sun's light which forms a bright ring around the Moon's black shadow.

<https://www.timeanddate.com/eclipse/total-solar-eclipse.html>

<https://solarsystem.nasa.gov/eclipses/2023/oct-14-annular/overview/>

What's all the fuss about?

I'll tell you at the April meeting why people will travel half way round the world just to see one!

It's not just about totality, coronas and diamond rings, the lead up to totality is full of interesting phenomena like strange shadows and 360° sunsets. The time goes quickly, even a 4 min of totality in Libya seemed to go in a blink. 60 seconds of totality in Exmouth will definitely need planning for what you want to see and photograph. I'll be going through some of the key things to look out for and share some tips from the eclipse chasers.

Drifting around Drifta General Meeting - Tuesday 14 March

Joy Unno

The Club had the March General Meeting at Drifta Stockton in Canning Vale at the invitation of managers/franchise owners, Gavin and Megan. This came about due to Vanessa and Greg purchasing a roof-top tent from Drifta last year.

Drifta has become renowned for their strong but light-weight roof top tents, 4x4 awnings, camp tables and camping chairs. They also have a large range of camp cookware, fire pits, off-road recovery gear including snatch straps, an extensive range of all sizes of canvas bags, some with clear tops, and more.

A good Club member turn-out showed up at the Canning Vale store (27 people) and browsed around the products on display. A lot of it was stuff that you don't see in the usual camping stores. I was quite taken with the lovely pink swag swathed in pink fairy lights, with matching pink camp chair and foot stool.

As a marketing incentive Megan gave raffle tickets out to anyone who bought a product. My purchases for the night were a foldable metal light pole with table clamp, a gas cannister for the Jetboil, a pair of fire gloves, and a pink Drifta T-shirt.

Towards the end of the night, our President, David, drew the winning raffle tickets. Norm took away the $100 Gift Voucher and was all smiles. Angus initially won the Snatch Strap but kindly gave it back for re-raffling as he said he already had one. Newish member Uta was the lucky winner of the Snatch Strap. A good time was had by all.

Thank you Drifta Stockton Perth for hosting the Subaru Club.

Milligans Island

Day One - Saturday 25 February

Tony Richards

I arrived at the meeting spot at about 7.25 am. Neil Hird was already there and then along came Natasha and Robert and, last but not least (and just a little late), our illustrious trip leaders Deb and Mary. Mary was in Deb's car. After a quick briefing from Deb, we were all away by about 7.45, with me as tail-end Charlie. There were four cars only. Ross Mead had dropped out as had Rochelle Booth.

The weather was really good – sunny with a clear blue sky, but there was a strong crosswind which you could feel blowing against the car. Our first stop was at Cervantes and we arrived there about 9.45. We parked at a carpark with a view over the ocean. Coffee and cakes were had. I also needed to buy a loaf of bread, as I had left my bread on the bench at home! At 10.15, we were back on the road heading north to Jurien, just 15 minutes further on.

On the way to Cervantes there had been a bit of a discussion about Deb's CB radio, which was coming through soft then loud – strange. It was a Midland CB radio. I hadn't heard of them before. I just hoped the issue did not cause any problems, which it didn't.

Rob wanted to stop at the bakery at Jurien for some goodies. After a quick stop, we were on our way again, driving through to our camp for the night at the Milligan Island Eco Camping Nodes.

On the drive in to the camp site, google maps was telling us to go straight ahead but straight ahead was in fact a range of sand dunes that had completely covered the road. Thankfully there was an alternate track. Rob suggested it would be more fun to take the google route but the rest of us were not so keen.

We arrived at about 11.15. All was good. We were hoping to find spots at the camp that had some shade and shelter from the wind which was still blowing quite strongly. Unfortunately, these were in relatively short supply, but each node (there were three of them) did have its own shelter – a shady, high roofed shelter with tables and bench seats and a gas barbeque. I would be using the gas BBQ for dinner – my usual – sausages! Each node also had its own toilet block.

At midday, a Ranger came through to see that all campers had registered and paid their fees.

Interestingly, the Ranger's vehicle had on it a statement that the Ranger was from a 'Contract Ranger Service.'

Mary and Deb's camp site.
Drill in pegs were used to secure tents.

After tents were up, lunch was had around 12.25, under the shelter. By then, there was a nice southerly breeze blowing, but it was still hot. Not a cloud in the sky! There was also a Nankeen Kestrel looking over us from a high perch nearby.

We decided to go Stockyard Gully after lunch had been completed. It was a 30-minute trip.

We arrived about 2.30 and it was still very hot. We were hoping that it was going to be somewhat cooler in the main cave. We followed the track along the (dry) creek bed to the cave entrance. Deb decided to head back to the carpark – not keen on caves.

Neil at the entrance of the cave at Stockyard Gully

The middle of the cave by torch light. There were warnings of quicksand but sadly we didn't have the excitement of finding any

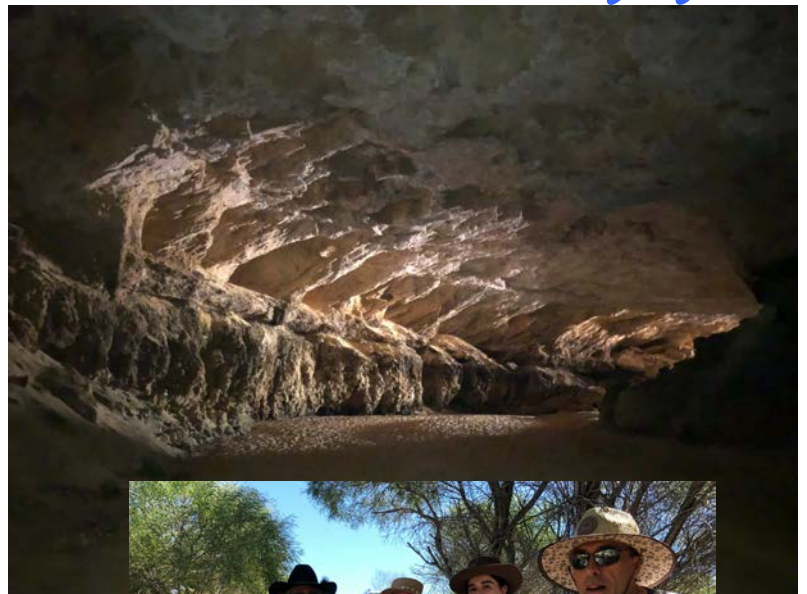

Tony at the exit of the cave.

It was so much cooler in the cave rather than continuing on with the loop walk we decided to turn around and go back through the cave.

Native bee hives on the rock walls of the gully

The cave was indeed cooler, thankfully. Probably a 10 minute walk through the cave, with torches on – once away from the entrance, it was pitch black inside. At the other end, we decided to simply go back the way we came, rather than take the loop track. Cooler! When we got back to the carpark, Deb was there waiting for us with a packet of snakes – a fix for our sweet teeth. She also had Gnomie in tow – time for some photos.

While the others headed back to camp, I stayed on a bit to look for some birds, with not much success. I arrived back at camp at about 4.30. By then, the girls had found a shady spot, the camp chairs were out and they were taking it easy in the heat of the late afternoon. I had thought we were going to go for swim, but it seemed that wasn't going to happen, so I got my chair and joined them. Discussion turned to sunset – Deb and Mary were keen to see (and photograph) the sunset through Window Rock – a square hole in a rock island just offshore. When I saw the photos later (I missed the sunset) I hadn't realised just how dramatic it was, viewed though the 'window'!

Sunset through Lipfert Island 'window'

Neil and I cooked our T-bone and sausages respectively on the BBQ. It wasn't the world's fastest BBQ, but we got there in the end. Somewhat later, Rob and Tash came to have to have their dinner. With the nibbles at beer-o'clock, they didn't feel as hungry, so left dinner until later. Then came the good part. Deb had blueberry muffins to share and Rob offered us Ferrero Rocher chocolates!

The bees were a little over over friendly at Deb and Mary's camp site where they were literally chasing after Mary. It turns out they were thirsty and rather liked the idea of her sweat after having set up the tent in the heat. Eeek!

Deb had heard if troubled by bees put out a dish of water. It seemed to help.

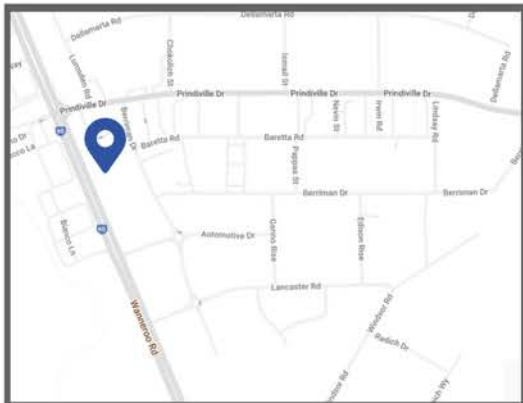

Sunset at Window Rock.
Just before the sun sets it looks a bit like the stair case to the moon that you see in Broome.

Milligans Island

Day Two- Sunday 26 February

Tony Richards

I slept reasonably well – woke about 3.00 or 4.00 am then tossed and turned a bit. Thankfully, the wind had died down and there was no tent flapping. I had only erected the inner tent – no fly. Got up about 5.50, packed up and then went birding until 7.30.

Deb, Mary, Neil and I departed at 8.00 and drove to Green Head to do the Three Bays Walkway. Walkers have spectacular views of the three main bays – South Bay, Dynamite Bay and Anchorage Bay – with amazing displays of flora and fauna. Rob and Tash had decided to go for a snorkel instead and agreed to meet us at Jurien at 10.00.

We enjoyed the walk, but not the northerly wind, which was still blowing strongly. We had parked at the beach carpark at Greenhead and, as it turned out, this was the half way point for the walk. We elected to head north first, came back and then headed south for a distance to see what there was to see. Heading south with the wind was better than walking north into the wind!

After the walk, we filled up with fuel at the nearby Liberty service station and went on to Jurien. We bought coffee and (some of us) cakes and sat at a park table and bench seats for morning tea. Rob and Tash arrived at 10.00, got some drink and food and joined us at the table. They had seen lots of fish snorkelling, but Tash added that the water was cold.

At about 10.45, we left Jurien and headed back to Perth in our own time. I had elected to drive more slowly on the way home. From Green Head to home (254.5 kms), at 95 kmh, my fuel economy was 7.3 litres per 100 kms, which I thought was good. Over a total distance of 602.3kms, my recorded economy figure was 8.0 litres per 100 kms. I got home at about 1.30 pm.

My thanks to both Deb and Mary for co-leading the trip – most enjoyable!
